Words of Encouragement

May 3, 2026

“Consider it pure joy, my brothers and sisters, whenever you face trials of many kinds, because you know that the testing of your faith produces perseverance. Let perseverance finish its work so that you may be mature and complete, not lacking anything.” (James 1:2-4)

The command to consider trials as pure joy feels almost impossible when you are standing in the middle of a trial, or when the hurt is real and the fear feels overwhelming. But understand that James is not asking you to fake happiness or pretend the struggle does not exist.

The testing of your faith is not punishment. It is not a sign that you have done something wrong. The testing of your faith is God’s refining process that turns surface-level belief into deep, unshakable trust. Trials reveal what we truly believe about God when circumstances stop cooperating with our plans.

The trial you are facing right now is not random. God is using it to build something in you that cannot be developed in comfort. Patience that only exists when life is easy is not real patience. Faith that only functions when everything makes sense is not mature faith.

“God has a plan for our lives, and surrendering to Him means we set aside our own plans and eagerly seek his.”

What God is after is a version of you that can stand steady no matter what comes, not because you are strong on your own, but because you have learned to lean entirely on Him. The goal is not just survival. The goal is completion.

When you feel weak in the middle of the trial, remember that weakness is often where perseverance begins. God is not trying to break you. He is trying to build you into someone who can carry more of His presence, more of His peace, and more of His purpose.

So when the trial feels long, ask God what He is teaching you. When the struggle feels heavy, ask Him to help you see what He is building. And when you are tempted to rush through or give up, ask God for the grace to let perseverance finish its work. Trust that God knows what He is doing, even when you cannot see the outcome yet.
